Public Notice

The United States Air Force (USAF) has prepared an Engineering Evaluation/Cost Analysis (EE/CA) to assess alternatives associated with mitigating Perfluorooctane Sulfonate (PFOS) and Perfluorooctanoic Acid (PFOA) contamination in the drinking water supply wells of the Widefield Water and Sanitation District. The mitigation will protect human health from exposure to PFOS and PFOA in groundwater in excess of United States Environmental Protection Agency lifetime health advisory levels. The EE/CA will be available for public review for 30 days, ending on July 9, 2018. Upon timely receipt of a request for an extension, the comment period may be extended for a minimum of 15 additional days. The EE/CA considered three alternatives to obtain additional drinking water beyond the current purchase of treated surface water and operation of the existing ion exchange system: 1) purchase additional drinking water; 2) treat additional water pumped from contaminated wells using a granular activated carbon system, or 3) treat additional water pumped from contaminated wells using an ion exchange system. The recommended alternative is to treat contaminated well water using an ion exchange system funded by the Air Force. The treatment will remove PFOS and PFOA from the water and thereby enable Widefield to resume production from its other drinking water wells. The EE/CA may be found at <http://afcec.publicad-min-record.us.af.mil/Search.aspx>; select "Peterson AFB, CO" on the left, then click "Search"; it is one of the top documents in the list at the bottom of the page.
